What to do if your PC crashes

You might be working on your computer when suddenly the screen freezes or the mouse no longer seems to function; a so called crash occurs. Don't despair, there is a series of steps you can follow to resolve the problem.

The first thing to do is to wait! Pressing more keys will just add to the computer's problems, perhaps even a crash; your computer could be taking it's time doing something.

Pressing the Ctrl+Alt+DELETE key combination (all at the same time) presents you with an on-screen window, which you can use as a starting point for escaping a crash.

Click on (highlight) the program you want to close, and then click End Task. Repeat to close other programs. Close the window to see if your computer is working again; if it is, first save all your work before continuing. If your computer still doesn't respond, press Clrt+Alt+DELETE again then try clicking SHUT DOWN in the dialogue box. Turn off the power switch as a last resort.
